

Movements of the Gospel

Dick Germaine was the officiating Pastor at my wedding when Pam and I first married. He was a great advocate for us then, and continues to be so today.

I received an email from him a week ago saying, "My daughter Jana and her family will be in Chiang Mai..."

We spent Sunday together. I really enjoyed their visit. They have 4 lovely children all of whom, parents included, were very open hearted toward learning about the Thai nation, people and religion.

They asked great questions and shared some really good insights. Tom said at one point, "In the US less and less people have a Judeo-Christian awareness. They know none of the Bible Stories. Your approach may well be what we need to be doing there."

It was a wonderful visit, and Dick you should be proud.

We started in the morning and finished late afternoon, enjoyed lunch and visits to 3 temples. At the table, in the car, as we walked through each temple there was a constant flow of conversation.

Later this week Awn and I will travel for a week long conference in Malaysia. It will include people from all over the world. We have been asked to share a bit about our experience in Thailand.

Please pray for a specific outcome from our time. That we would inspire people to pray for movements and think about the key elements that go into gospel movements.

About 6 months ago I met 4 people who are from Bangkok. They discovered Christ in the midst of one of our local communities here. I did not know about them. In Bangkok they are central to a large movement of the gospel. That is how movement works. The gospel moves in and through ordinary people. It is beautiful.

Two days ago we got word that one of the Leaders, age over 60, fell down the stairs and may be an invalid for what remains of her life. Please pray for JayMuay (เจ็หมวย), that God would touch and heal her body, that she would survive. It is very delicate at present.
